5. 'Christian teaching about the Trinity makes no sense.'

[12 marks]

Some Christians agree:

Goes against logic>How can something be three and also one? >It does not make mathematical sense. Christians are monotheistic>they worship one God>BIBLE: The first commandment says only worship God. BIBLE: "Hear O Israel, The Lord our God, The Lord is One". The Trinity is not explicitly mentioned in the Bible.

Some Christians disagree:

Although the Trinity is not explicitly mentioned in the Bible, the idea is present> Christians are told to be baptised "in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit". BIBLE: In Jesus' baptism all three parts of the Trinity are present. Although it may not make logical sense to us, God is mysterious to us and we as humans can never fully comprehend Him fully. H<sub>2</sub>O can be steam, ice or water and still H<sub>2</sub>O.

POTENTIAL WEAK ARGUMENT: The Trinity is not explicitly mentioned in the Bible but each aspect is.
